開講時期：	後期 金曜 4・5・6 限	募集定員：	24 名
内容：	What makes labour markets in different countries different? Is globalisation changing employment practices? In this class we study about labour markets in different countries and human resource practices. We will read English sources. Students will then work in groups to do research on global human resource topics of their choice. Finally, students will write a report summarizing the results of their research, and what they have learned about how to adapt to work in the global economy. I will use English in class but students may use Japanese if they wish. However, they will be expected to listen and read in English when required by the instructor. Final reports may be written in English or in Japanese.
到達目標：	Students will gain an understanding of the main differences between Japanese and foreign labour markets and personnel practices. Students will learn how to write an academic report in to an international standard.
